Dear Juanita:

I am writing to inform you that the Nurse Practitioner Bill, S. 8477 passed the Senate overwhelmingly on June 22 with a vote of 45 for and 12 votes against.

Unfortunately, due to personal circumstances, I was not in the Senate Chamber during this vote, but I wish to assure you that I would have voted against the bill if I had been in the Chamber at that time. I have taken much time to study this issue, and have looked at both sides carefully, and I feel as you do that this bill does not answer the complex issues facing the nursing profession.

Thank you for your efforts to apprise me of your concerns regarding this issue. This bill is now on the Assembly calendar, where it will probably be voted on in the next few days.

Please continue to keep me advised on issues regarding the nursing profession. I will try to be of help whenever possible.

Sincerely,

force on life and law

Denise Hanlon, a clinical instructor in Graduate Nursing Education, has been appointed by Governor Mario Cuomo to the New York State Task Force on Life and the Law.

A nursing specialist in gerontology, Hanlon was named to the task force on the recommendations of Evan Calkins, M.D., a task force member. Calkins is a professor of medicine and family medicine here and head of the Division of Geriatrics at the Buffalo VA Medical Center.

The task force was created by Gov. Cuomo in 1985 to serve as a sounding board for legislation or health regulations relating to what the governor has termed "critical life and death issues."

Hanlon, also a law firm consultant in medical malpractice cases involving elderly patients, was employed for six years by Buffalo General Hospital as a clinical nurse specialist in gerontology. She relinquished that post last June.

The task force, headed by State Health Commissioner David Axelrod, M.D., as chairman, meets monthly in New York City for one-day sessions and conducts special conferences as needed. Members serve without pay but are reimbursed for expenses incurred in the performance of their duties.

Hanlon, who expects to attend her first monthly meeting in December, explained that the task force becomes involved in such issues as life-sustaining medical treatment, "do not resuscitate" orders, surrogate manhood, abortion, human organ procurement and distribution, the treatment of severely disabled newborns, and care for the elderly.

In notifying Hanlon of her selection, Gov. Cuomo wrote that the task force bears a responsibility "to protect individual rights and the rights of families from the need for interference of government" while assuring members of society of the "full benefits of our health care system."

Calling for "reasoned discourse" tied to "delicate and discriminate judgments," the governor told Hanlon that he believed her participation as a task force member will play a vital role in "address[ing] the technology of today and its impacts on decisions of life and death."

The governor initially named 21 members to serve on the panel, but the number had grown to 26 by the end of its first year of operation.

Nurse Honored for Teaching Children, Families About Living With Illnesses

By ANNE FAGE

Times Herald Tribune

As a nurse clinician in the gastroenterology division at Children's Hospital, Betty Morrison-Willard meets families at one of the lowest points in their lives.

With a child diagnosed as having a potentially life-threatening chronic illness, they are scared, depressed and trying to cope with a world overhauled.

While on paper her job is described as preparing families to care for chronically ill children at home, it also involves the challenge of soothing their fears, lifting their spirits and helping them regain control.

Others would view such a job with dread, but Ms. Morrison-Willard feels blessed to be in a position to help such patients and their families.

"You have the energy to give these people because you know you make a world of difference in their lives," she said.

"It's not that I'm an expert at it," she added. "What I feel I'm real successful with is making people aware that they can do it. I can give them confidence."

As a result of the confidence she instilled in a Jamestown family and its teen-age daughter, Ms. Morrison-Willard recently was named one of nine winners in the first nationwide "Nurses Make a Difference" contest sponsored by the American Hospital Association's American Organization of Nurse Executives.

She and eight co-winners — one from each region of the country — were chosen from among 5,000 nominees.

Ms. Morrison-Willard was nominated by Rosemary Cali and her daughter, Amy, 14, who last fall was diagnosed at Children's as having Crohn's disease, a chronic inflammation of the digestive tract.

"We all felt that our world had come to an end," the mother and daughter wrote in their letter of nomination. "But through the time spent with Betty's patience and guidance, she helped us cope with what the future could hold ahead for us."

Ms. Morrison-Willard, they noted, "did make the difference in helping Amy — and as all — learn that life is a challenge and not just a hopeless struggle."

They added: "Betty made Amy understand that rather than being different from other teen-agers, she was indeed special because she had learned to cope with something that even most adults have a lot of trouble with handling."

Ms. Morrison-Willard, who is uncomfortable with public praise of her work, almost decided not to attend the presentation ceremony held May 22 in Las Vegas, Nev.

When she stepped on stage to accept her plaque, she said, "It was like being recognized for all of the things you think people don't notice."

Ms. Morrison-Willard, 34, is a graduate of South Park High School and D'Youville College. She was inspired to be a nurse by her mother, Marjorie Morrison, a registered nurse and Board of Cooperative Educational Services instructor.

Ms. Morrison-Willard joined Children's Hospital 12 years ago, working first as a nurse in the intensive-care nursery.

She has worked for nearly 10 years as one of two nurse clinicians with the international division for Infant Nutrition and Gastrointestinal Disease, which is Children's division of gastroenterology.

As a nurse, Ms. Morrison-Willard admitted, she has had "a lot of tough times," many of them related to patient setbacks and deaths.

She quickly added, however, that "the rewards you get and the way you feel about yourself, I don't think you can get from any other profession."

While patients and families help to make her the focus of their praise, she quickly notes that successes are the result of professional teamwork.

"A lot of the parents see just me and do not realize that so many people — doctors, nurses and others — are involved," she explained.

Although to some extent the conditions improve for periods of time, "they are usually lifelong problems, which can make it extremely difficult because there isn't anything they are going to get over," she said.

Most patients and families are grateful for any help Ms. Morrison-Willard can provide. As with the Cali family, she develops a close relationship with many of them.

"They are so scared when you first meet them," she added. "It's a very frightening experience for the child and the family. I've had parents look at a tube in a child's chest and almost pass out."

She has learned, however, that those families, too, often pull through in the long run.

"When it comes to love for a child," she said, "there is nothing you can't overcome."

Dear Ms. Hunter:

I appreciate your comments and the concerns you expressed with respect to A.11447, the Nurse Practitioner Act.

As nurses, your concern regarding the quality of health and delivery of health care is to be commended. We disagreed on many issues raised in A.11447, but none of us lost sight of the importance of health care and its delivery to those less fortunate in terms of the availability of health care for all.

You should be aware that the action taken by the Senate, Assembly and Governor on A.11447 represents our need as public officials and legislators to ensure the health, safety and welfare of all citizens of this State. Recognizing your arguments and respecting your opinion, my colleagues and I, nevertheless, have determined that enactment of A.11447 will fill a gap in the current health delivery system of New York, and as such represents a fulfillment of our constitutional obligation to set public policy which benefits all of the citizens of this state.

In closing, I want to emphasize that, under no circumstances, should you feel your opinions are not valued or your presence in my office on other issues unwanted. Both are welcome.

Ms. Hunter

Now, we must move forward and address those other outstanding issues and barriers to quality health care for all of the citizens of our state. I invite you to join me.

Dear Juanita:

I wish to share with you my dismay at the recent action taken by the New York State Nurses Association Board of Directors, proposing withdrawal of the association from the American Nurses' Association.

In my view, the proposal is of such a serious nature that to act on it at the upcoming convention, without total membership participation, would be a grave mistake. I urge further debate and that consideration be given, after thoughtful deliberation, to polling the entire NYSNA community.

Regrettably, I am unable to attend the NYSNA convention because of an earlier commitment. I urge the Board to consider my request. If nurses really care about each other, their profession, and the public, isn't it better to pull together than apart for the common good?

Dear Shirley,

Thank you for your letter of October 10, 1988, regarding the proposed withdrawal of the NYSNA from the American Nurses' Association. The resolution was by law and was presented to the NYSNA membership from 1984. As you may remember, the 1984 voting body mandated that the resolution be by law and be brought before the 1989 voting body.

I agree that the proposal is a very serious matter and NYSNA has not published the findings of the COAR Report and whatever related to the membership issue and the NYSNA Report since the 1984 convention.

As you are probably under the 1989 voting body determined to take no action on the resolution until the by-law amendment until the COAR Report is acted upon by the 1989 ANA House of Delegates. Having this period there will be time for the additional thought, deliberation and debate which you suggest is needed.

Thank you again for taking the time to let me hear your position on this.

Cordially,
JUANITA K. HUNTER, President

Dear Ms. Orr:

I am a nursing student currently enrolled in a Licensed Practical Nursing Program. I wish to voice my concerns about the exemption of licensed practical nurses from membership to the American Nurses Association.

It is often stressed that the American Nursing Association considers itself the "official voice" for professional nursing in the United States of America. To the best of my knowledge, membership to this association is granted only to the registered nurses with no consideration being given to licensed practical nurses.

Although there is a slight difference in educational background, the license practical nurse is often designated to perform in the capacity of a registered nurse. This situation often presents itself because of the great demand for nurses. It is, however, observed that there is no differentiation between these two categories whenever duties are to be carried out, since they both work toward one common goal. However, when benefits are sought by the license practical nurse the distinction then resurfaces.

Medical benefits as well as professional growth are just a few of the benefits that the registered nurse obtains through the American Nursing Association, but is denied from the license practical nurse.

This organization fully supports this legislation, however feels at this time, for very obvious political reasons, that during the current nursing shortage it should not be the designated priority for the legislative program this year.

Thank you for sending a copy of your proposed resolution regarding homelessness. It is well written and addresses an important topic.

I have no specific suggestions for improving or editing the resolution. I have forwarded a copy to Juanita Hunter, NYSNA President, to the chairperson of our Legislative Council, Jean Heady, and to the chairperson of our Council on Human Rights, Lolita Compas.

My assumption is that you wish to introduce this resolution at the NYSNA Convention in October. It would be most appropriate to do this in the context of the report of the Council on Legislation since your resolution requests a legislative approach to the issue. It would be helpful to the President and the Chair of the Legislative Council to know in advance if you plan to do this yourself.

If you need further assistance, please do not hesitate to let me know.

Dear Mrs. Molle':

President Juanita Hunter has asked that I respond to your letter regarding the use of a mail ballot for the ANA membership issue. Thank you for writing to us of your concerns.

I am enclosing for your reference a copy of the NYSNA Bylaws. As you will note, the Voting Body of the Association is the only entity authorized by our bylaws to determine the positions and policies of the Association. (See Article XIII, p.12) Every member present is entitled to participate in the debate and vote on matters before the Voting Body.

In general, Not-for-Profit corporation law confirms that only a properly constituted governing body such as a Board of Directors or convened Voting Body can exercise the governance of an incorporated Association. The rationale is that these bodies exercise their decision-making authority only when they are in official meeting, and only when they have been parties to the debate and discussion of an issue.

This principle is quite different when applied to election of the governing body. In that case, both the NYSNA Bylaws and applicable law require that every member be given the opportunity to vote. (See Article XII, p.11) There is no requirement for debate or discussion because an individual's vote is purely a personal decision, presumably based on an objective review of the candidates' credentials.

Your concern was also expressed by some individuals at last year's Voting Body. At that time it was suggested that a bylaws amendment be introduced to require a mail ballot on this and similar issues. After debate, a large majority of those members present in the Voting Body rejected that proposal. It was noted that the requirement of attendance and participation in the

Dear Mrs. Sodosky:

President Juanita Hunter has asked that I respond to your letter regarding the use of a mail ballot for the ANA membership issue. Thank you for writing to us of your concerns.

I am enclosing for your reference a copy of the NYSNA Bylaws. As you will note, the Voting Body of the Association is the only entity authorized by our bylaws to determine the positions and policies of the Association. (See Article XIII, p.12) Every member present is entitled to participate in the debate and vote on matters before the Voting Body.

In general, Not-for-Profit corporation law confirms that only a properly constituted governing body such as a Board of Directors or convened Voting Body can exercise the governance of an incorporated Association. The rationale is that these bodies exercise their decision-making authority only when they are in official meeting, and only when they have been parties to the debate and discussion of an issue.

This principle is quite different when applied to election of the governing body. In that case, both the NYSNA Bylaws and applicable law require that every member be given the opportunity to vote. (See Article XII, p.11) There is no requirement for debate or discussion because an individual's vote is purely a personal decision, presumably based on an objective review of the candidates' credentials.

Your concern was also expressed by some individuals at last year's Voting Body. At that time it was suggested that a bylaws amendment be introduced to require a mail ballot on this and similar issues. After debate, a large majority of those members present in the Voting Body rejected that proposal. It was noted that the requirement of attendance and participation in the Voting Body was identical to the process utilized in most organizations, including The American Nurses' Association.

I am enclosing for your reference the materials which will be distributed to the Voting Body to assist in members' deliberation of this important issue. These materials address your question concerning the implications of withdrawal from ANA.

Thank you again for writing. I will be pleased to respond to any additional questions you may have concerning this matter.

Sincerely,

Martha L. Orr
